DR. THOMAS BARTOSCHECK

is a research associate at the Institute for Geoinformatics at the University of Münster. He wrote his doctoral thesis on the topic of „Spatial Learning with Geotechnologies“ and has spent the last 15 years building up the student and research lab GI@School, in which new technologies are developed and researched in the context of digital education.

Thomas is the inventor behind the „senseBox“ a Citizen Science Toolkit. In 2018, he founded Reedu, where his research and development work in the context of Digital Education is further developed and grows into products. His work has been recognized with several awards, including the 2017 CeBIT Innovation Award „Special Award for Digital Learning and Teaching“ and the 2013 ACM Eugene Lawler Award from the International Computer Science Association for his humanitarian and social contribution to computer science.

DR. WENDY WILLEMS

is Associate Professor and Deputy Head of the Department of Media and Communications at the London School of Economics and Political Science. Her research interests include global digital culture and social change, postcolonial/decolonial approaches to media and communications and urban communication. She has published articles in journals such as Communication Theory, Information, Communication and Society, Popular Communication and Media, Culture and Society. She is co-editor of Civic Agency in Africa: Arts of Resistance in the Twenty-First Century (James Currey, 2014; with Ebenezer Obadare) and Everyday Media Culture in Africa: Audiences and Users (Routledge, 2016, with Winston Mano).
